

cho minju

May 14, 2025

You are most like The Campaigner

Campaigners focus on rallying others around ideas, positions and solutions and achieving practical results. They tend to be ambitious, agile, inspiring, energetic and practical while at times being single-minded.

Typical Campaigners set ambitious goals and have a tenacious desire to achieve them, and have a strong ability to influence and inspire others along the way. They tend to follow through and finish what they start, no matter how long it takes. Their ability to read people at an emotional level and connect with them through the expression of common values is key to bringing others around to their way of thinking. They tend to be great networkers and are strategic and practical in how they navigate people and relationships.

Other distinguishing characteristics include their ability to play different roles in different situations. Campaigners tend to have boundless energy and capitalize quickly and actively on the opportunities in front of them. Campaigners typically prefer to go with the current rather than be too bold and rebellious in breaking with norms and traditions. They seek to be respected and admired, and tend to find validation through the rewards and status they reap in achieving their goals.

To that end, at times, Campaigners can lose themselves in their determination and ambition. They can be perceived as having tunnel vision and be consumed by work to the extent they neglect other things, like more intimate relationships or their own needs for relaxation and balance.

Campaigner Talents

- Being goal directed, practical, quick to respond, and driven to achieve
- Inspiring and convincing others to get behind their vision
- Being motivated by external goals and having high stamina and energy
- Capitalizing on opportunities as they arise
- Being energetic and inexhaustible

Campaigner Growth Needs

- Developing greater insight into their personal and inner motivations
- Not sacrificing other priorities for achievement and ambition
- Not losing themselves in seeking validation externally
- Monitoring their energy levels to avoid burnout

You also have attributes of the Problem Solver and the Peacekeeper

The Problem Solver

Problem Solvers are motivated to support and help others in an industrious and professional manner. They tend to be supportive, conscientious, responsible and proactive.

The Peacekeeper

Peacekeepers relish developing positive relationships between people, and seeking harmony, compromise, and cooperation. They tend to be empathetic, agreeable, agile, and diplomatic.

Here are the archetypes you are least like.

The Investigator

Investigators are driven to research and analyze information and data to build knowledge and understanding. They tend to be logical and analytical, rigorous, and more reserved and thoughtful than outgoing and expressive.

The Inventor

Inventors are driven by coming up with new and innovative ideas, products and solutions. They tend to be creative, open-minded, conceptual, spontaneous and at times disorganized and unstructured.

How You Prefer to Think

Creative

You tend to heavily favor tradition and set practices, and like following rules and routines.

Original	25%
Curious	9%
Non-Conforming	8%

Deliberative

You strive for objectivity, with a balanced preference between being logical and deliberate versus intuitive and spontaneous when reaching decisions and making choices.

Logical	45%
Systematic	58%
Impartial	61%

Detailed and Reliable

You tend to be organized, planful, and reliable in meeting commitments and deadlines, though may not be overly precise or focused on details.

Organized	70%
Detail-Oriented	29%
Dependable	70%

Conceptual

You have a preference for straightforward, concrete thinking over abstract and philosophical thinking.

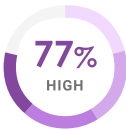

Practical

You tend to be less concerned with the direct, practical consequences or constraints of a given action as a key factor in decision-making, possibly favoring a more idealistic approach.

How You Engage with Others

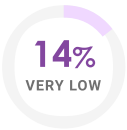

Extraverted

You tend to be engaging and outgoing, thrive at the epicenter of social activities, but are more cautious than adventurous in the activities you like to participate in.

Gregarious	81%
Engaging	89%
Adventurous	35%

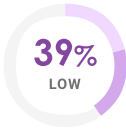

Tough

You tend to be less confrontational and more diplomatic in your style, seeking cooperation and compromise over more open disagreement and critique of others' ideas and positions.

Feisty	14%
Critical	12%
Direct	29%

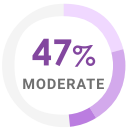

Nurturing

You have a strong desire to prioritize and support others' needs, while being less interested in deeply observing their personal behaviors, quirks, and tendencies.

Helpful	68%
Empathetic	41%
Person-Oriented	17%

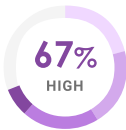

Leadership

You tend to be less inclined to direct others by setting clear standards and applying pressure to have them met, though are generally willing to take charge in groups and rally others towards shared goals when necessary.

Taking Charge	56%
Inspiring	59%
Demanding	24%

Humorous

You tend to be more joyful and lighthearted than serious and intense.

How You Apply Yourself

Composed

You may lose your composure in more challenging or high-pressure situations, with a moderate inclination to be resilient and not get upset or discouraged.

Calm	44%
Confident	54%
Poised	29%

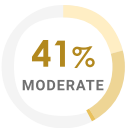

Autonomous

You have a desire for clarity and direction from outside yourself when achieving tasks and goals, and tend not to believe that success or failure are most often attributable to factors within one's control.

Independent	13%
Self-Accountable	33%
Internally Motivated	35%

Flexible

You are generally comfortable with change and uncertainty, able to vary the roles you play in different circumstances, though may focus less on making personal development through examining mistakes and weaknesses a top priority.

Adaptable	54%
Agile	49%
Growth-Seeking	26%

Determined

You work hard to go after ambitious goals, are generally inclined to seize new opportunities and push through to finish what you start.

Persistent	59%
Driven	66%
Proactive	47%

Humble

You tend to be less receptive to critical feedback or eager to openly examine your mistakes, weaknesses, and blind spots, and may prefer to project self-confidence rather than modesty.

- Receptive to Criticism 25%
- Open-Minded 31%
- Modest 16%

Energetic

You have average levels of stamina, enthusiasm, and energy in work and life.

Status-Seeking

You have a preference to please, "keep up" appearances, be liked, admired, and respected.

How you respond in different situations:

Now that you've reviewed your detailed results, "You" in Context gives insight into how the combination of your attributes may play out in a variety of work and life situations.

When interacting with others, you...

- ...Are outgoing and social, and prefer to fit into your group rather than stand apart
- ...Tend to be fun, joyful, and lighthearted
- ...Tend to avoid getting deeply involved in other people's problems and issues
- ...May prefer compromise with others over direct confrontation
- ...Still may not always be aware of the needs and feelings of others

As a leader, you...

- ...May be hesitant to get in other people's way, but step up when called upon
- ...May struggle to hold others accountable and give direct criticism when goals aren't met
- ...Rely on rules and standard operating procedures when directing others
- ...Can benefit from reaching out more actively and seeking input and guidance from others
- ...May prefer to project confidence and certainty, rather than acknowledge weakness and uncertainty openly
- ...Are vocal and engage directly with those you lead

When planning, you...

- ...See that some up-front planning is good, but too much can be overkill
- ...Make an effort to complete work on time, but don't worry if you miss a deadline or detail here and there
- ...Prefer working toward concrete objectives and expectations
- ...Are not bothered by close oversight and direction
- ...Think more concretely and literally

When solving problems, you...

- ...Like to stick to more traditional methods, and don't have much interest in engaging or debating unproven possibilities
- ...Don't mind being directed to solutions rather than finding them on your own
- ...Are comfortable with both structured and emergent modes of problem solving
- ...Like to rely on established guidance and tested methods
- ...Rely on past experience as a guide
- ...Don't take unnecessary risks
- ...Generally take a structured and systematic approach

When setting goals, you...

- ...Set practical and realistic targets for yourself
- ...Operate best when you can see your goals and objectives clearly to deliver concrete results
- ...Generally push through to results and change direction if circumstances demand

On a team, you...

- ...Engage openly with others, but avoid creating conflict
- ...Are actively involved with the team, but don't always perceive when others need support
- ...Prefer working in a group rather than going your own way
- ...Prefer compromise, cooperation, and harmony over open debate and disagreement
- ...Tend to avoid getting caught up in other people's emotions as you pursue team goals

Under stress, you...

- ...Generally remain calm and composed, though stress may increase in situations with more ambiguity and uncertainty
- ...May be resistant to taking advice from others
- ...Tend to wear emotions on your sleeve

When learning, you...

- ...Generally default to sharing your insights and knowledge rather than hearing from others
- ...Don't find open-ended brainstorming particularly productive
- ...Like subjects that are straightforward, technical, and practical
- ...Like to participate in the discussion
- ...Are interested in applying tested methods using concrete knowledge and skill
- ...Can study for lengthy periods, but need mental breaks too